So, here's the thing about cellulite: It's not harmful, and it does not interfere with your quality of life. There's no solid reason to fear it, loathe it, or work to eradicate it from your body — by any means necessary. That said, lots of women aren't down with the dimples, and for them, getting rid of cellulite means committing to a regimen of creams, supplements, and massagers, not usually seen outside Beverly Hills. Bummer, right?

Or, you could just wear Beija Flor jeans. They use a specially-made, compression fabric that promises to reduce the appearance of cellulite over time. Which is cool, because you were probably going to wear jeans anyway.

The company's currently conducting 30-day tests to prove they're the real thing, and we'll be getting a pair to try out too. Watch this space for our special report on any dimple decrease.

Beija Flor Audrey Ankle Jean, $168, available at Beija Flor.
